The Architecture of Howard Van Doren Shaw: Reimagining the Traditional House

Wednesday, February 27, 6pm.

Driehaus Museum. 40 East Erie Street, Chicago.

Howard Van Doren Shaw was one of the best known country house architects of his day. He was described as the most “radical of the conservatives and the most conservative of the radicals.” Stuart Cohen’s lecture will examine Shaw’s work in relation to the progressive architectural ideas of his time. Shaw’s houses explored the same new ideas about interior space and the relationship of the interior to exterior space as did his Prairie School contemporaries without ever abandoning the language of traditional architecture.

This lecture is co-sponsored by the Institute for Classical Architecture and Art. Tickets are required except for ICAA members. See the link below to the Diehaus Museum’s Events Schedule.
